Telephone Building

and Dial System

Make Bow in Hope

Every person with a telephone has from a dozen to 30 numbers he knows by heart. But amnesia hit Hope Sunday.

Reminds of the time Mustafa Kemal, president of Turkey, abolished the use of the Roman alphabet. The older Turks woke up one morning to find they couldn't read. They had their kids with school-teaching busy looking up strange spelling of familiar words.

That's about how Hope felt Sunday and today. Every reach for the telephone was followed by a sudden pause, and a ruffling of the phone book, before business could proceed.

For at midnight Saturday the Southwestern Bell Telephone company cut Hope over to the old manual exchange to the new dial system. It took place in the fine new telephone building which Southwestern Bell has built on South Main st., in place of its former rented quarters on East Second. Many were there for the occasion. President Mike Kelly of Hope Chamber of Commerce made the first dialed call.

So today we're looking up new numbers, all over town; but the Turks lived through unreadable newspapers, and in due time we, too, will acquire another memory-ful of the multi-digit dial numbers.

Of course the Star has been hollering a long time for a new telephone building and the dial system. Hope's way behind the rest of the country. But I'll say this for Southwestern Bell: They've done a handsome job for our town, its people, and all the rural subscribers who are on Bell lines out of the Hope exchange.

Even those of you who are mechanically minded will be staggered by the vast wiring which rises in tiers in the room that holds the heart of the dial system. It represents a vast outlay of money, and calls for expert maintenance.

At Saturday midnight's ceremony I met my old friend John Carter, former district manager for the company at El Dorado, where we went through the oil boom in 1923, and who is now in Little Rock. He was showing the Smackover manager what to expect when the dial system is cut in there later this season.

To give you an idea how the dial plan speeds up communication: Not long ago I placed a call to an Eastern city which was routed through New York. Instead of calling the operator in the terminal city the New York girl merely dialed the number in the other town. It is conceivable that some time you may be able to dial a long-haul call direct from your own phone. But that's really dream-stuff.

Gives Advice to Motorists

Chicago, Oct. 29 (AP)—C. E. Davis, director of the refining division of the administration for defense, had this advice for motorists today:

"Get ready to clean up your engines, retard the spark setting, and prepare for knocking on the hills." In an address prepared for the National Lubricating Grease Institute, Davis said the anti-knock octane rating of automobile gasoline has been reduced in an effort to make more of the anti-knock ingredient, tetraethyl lead, available for the manufacture of aviation gasoline.

Decayed Body of Woman Found

Los Angeles, Oct. 29 (AP)—The decaying halves of a woman's body, found stuffed in a trunk on a vacant lot, are under study by police today.

There was no indication of identity. Police said the woman, about 40 years old, apparently had been murdered. The body was cut in two at the waist and jammed in a trunk bearing the initials "K.T.K."

Victor D. Keesey, partner in a trucking firm near the vacant lot, found the body yesterday while tracing an odor coming from the lot.

Hope 'Phones Go Dial in New Building

The Hope telephone system, dating back to a 50-station switchboard, was cut over to the modern dial operation in a beautiful new building at midnight Saturday by Southwestern Bell Telephone company.

That original 1896 switchboard, built by D. M. Finley and Ted Keysham, and managed by Charles Gale, rose from 50 telephones to 1,600 at the end of World War I, and totals 2,539 today.

Installation of the dial exchange canceled all telephone numbers and it was necessary to issue a new Hope directory with dial numbers. The new directory had been in subscribers' hands two weeks before the switchover this week-end.

The inauguration of the dial system took place in Southwestern Bell's new building on South Main St., which replaced the former rented quarters on East Second. Mike Kelly, president of Hope Chamber of Commerce, made the first dial call exactly at midnight.

Present for the ceremony were three city aldermen, Webb Laster, Jr. Paul Raley, and Frank Douglas, State Senator F. C. Crow, and a number of telephone officials, the local exchange staff and other citizens.

The original Hope exchange was bought by Southwestern Telephone & Telegraph Co. in 1905, at which time the installation had grown to five sections of switchboard—three local and two toll.

Between 1916 and 1919 five additional sections were installed, and in 1928 the switchboard capacity was raised from 400 telephones to 800.

Some idea of the recent growth of the local exchange is given by the following figures:

The average total of local calls per day rose from 7,500 in 1940 to 20,000 today, and average long distance calls per day, 210 in 1940, are now 420.

To Investigate Red Activity in Arkansas

Little Rock, Oct. 29 (AP)—Senator Eastland (D-Miss) says he is planning to investigate Communist activity in Arkansas.

He wants to center his probe on activities of the Little Rock local of the Independent Distributive, Processing and Office Workers of America.

But the existence of the local at Little Rock could not be confirmed today.

Eastland is chairman of a subcommittee of the senate committee on internal security. At Memphis last week he held hearings on Memphis Local 9 of the distributive, processing and office workers and at the conclusion said it was not a union at all but a Communist organization.

Most of the members of the Memphis local are Negroes employed by the Buckeye Cotton Oil company.

Eastland said Saturday his investigations would take up their probing into Communist doings in Arkansas and other MidSouth states in about three weeks.

Labor officials at Little Rock last night said they had never heard of the CIO local of the Distributive, Processing and Office Workers Union.

S. P. Dixon, assistant commissioner of the Arkansas department of labor, said there was no such local in Little Rock.

Sherman V. Inn, secretary of the American Federation of Labor in Arkansas, said he had never heard of a local by that name.

Lee Tucker of Benton, Arkansas director of the congress of industrial organizations, was out of the state and other CIO officials were not available.

One local in Arkansas was affected about a year and a half ago when the CIO ousted the food, tobacco and agricultural workers on a charge of being leftwing. The FTAW had a local at North Little Rock which is still in operation.

Arkadelphia — Beverly Blevins, Arkadelphia, has been elected president of Delta Sigma Epsilon sorority at Henderson State Teacher's College. She is a senior speech major.

Also elected to offices in the organization this year were: Bonnie Houser, Arkadelphia, vice-president; Betty Sue Chittwood, North Little Rock, corresponding secretary; Miriam Morford, Fort Smith, treasurer; Betty Sue Edmiston, Hope, Chaplain; Jo Ann May, Antelope, sergeant-at-arms, and Gwen Pennington, Manning, editor-historian.

General Election to Be Held on November 6

Tuesday November 6, cities and towns in Hempstead county will vote in the general election and in most instances its a mere formality in which the democratic nominees are elected. Appearing on the ballot will be:

Hope: Mayor, John L. Wilson Jr. Treasurer, Charles F. Reynerson. Alderman, C. W. Tarpley, Howard Byers, Jesse Brown and H. C. Murphy and Municipal Judge, John P. Vesey.

Washington: Mayor, Thomas G. Haynes, recorder W. H. Etter and aldermen Mary Colts, Henry L. Saunders, S. Dudeney and R. L. Levins.

McKaskill: Mayor J. O. Harris, recorder, Chester McKaskill, Marshall H. L. Rhodes and aldermen R. C. Shuffield, John Gaines, Meart A. Pickett, M. M. Scott and Cloyd Bittick.

Blevins: J. I. Whitefield, M. D. Tiptitt, P. C. Stephens, R. J. Foster, L. J. Brown, Lee H. Huskey and N. P. Nesbitt.

Oakhaven: Mayor, Jess M. Davis recorder Paul H. Jones, aldermen Edward Aslin, Lyric McMahon, S. A. Westbrook and J. C. Atchley.

Liberals to Give Votes to Conservatives

London, Oct. 29 (AP)—The Liberals conditionally promised their six house of commons votes last night to bolster the narrow Conservative majority, but Liberal Leader Clement Davies said "no" to a cabinet bid from Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

The Liberals said their six members would swell the Tories' 18-seat majority on "measures clearly conceived in the interest of the country as a whole."

Davies, however, after a second weekend conference with Churchill, announced he "felt unable to accept" the conservative leader's offer of a post in the cabinet the new prime minister still was forming.

Churchill has named eight key members to his government and hopes to complete the lineup before parliament reconvenes Wednesday. The offer to Davies was designed to give the government the "broad base" promised by Churchill during the campaign, as well as to meet labor criticisms of the new regime as a "minority government." Despite their house of commons majority, the Tories drew 200,172 fewer votes than the Laborites in Thursday's general election.

Churchill already has named to his cabinet Anthony Eden as foreign secretary, deputy prime minister and leader of the house of commons; Lord Woolton, lord president of the council; R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer; Lord Ismay, common wealth relations; the Marquess of Salisbury, lord privy seal; Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, home secretary; Sir Walter Monckton, labor, and Oliver Lyttelton, colonies.

Others mentioned for government posts were Brendan Bracken, former minister of information and first lord of the admiralty Lord Leathers, wartime minister of transport; Sir John Anderson, former chancellor of the exchequer; Geoffrey Lloyd, former secretary for mines, and such younger Tories as David Eccles, building expert Ernest Marples, and Duncan Sandys, Churchill's son-in-law.

Dock Strike Showdown Fails to Develop

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)—A threatened showdown in New York waterfront strike failed to develop to day and miles and miles of docks remained closed tight after morning work whistles blew.

Marched in front of many piers. Announced plans of AFL Longshoremen's union to send men "through or over pickets" didn't materialize.

Police, anticipating a possible violent climax to the 5-day dock strike, increased waterfront patrols to about 400 men along the Manhattan docks alone.

But as the morning advanced, the docks remained quiet while pickets, shivering in a chill wind, plodded to and fro.

There was no sign of the non-strikers Ryan had threatened to send out.

John J. Sampson, leader of the strikers revolt against a new contract, said of Ryan's threat to send in nonstrikers to crash picket lines:

"He said that two weeks ago. The men will stay out as long as we are on strike."

Ryan, lifetime president of the AFL International Longshoremen's association yesterday wired President Truman, promising that his followers will not be kept from work by picket lines.

Ryan belligerently added that his men would "never go around the pickets, put through them."

At almost the same time, John J. (Gene) Sampson, leader of dissenting ILA members, sent a telegram to the president urging creation of an "emergency impartial body to review the strike."

Sampson said he would urge the men to return to work if Mr. Truman acted, but the wildcat leader maintained his opposition to the new work contract between the ILA and stevedore employers.

There was no immediate reply from Washington to the two telegrams.

However, a top White House official said he had received definite word that dockers would return to work today in response to President Truman's appeal last Friday.

The official, presidential Assistant John R. Steelman indicated his information came from a federal mediator and was not related to the telegrams.

Steelman's statement during an ABC television interview brought a denial and this comment from Sampson, "Applesauce."

Mr. Truman's plea for a return to work in the interest of national defense had been rejected by the strike committee.

Trial of Five Newsmen Is Postponed

Lake Charles, La., Oct. 29 (AP)—Arrangement of five newsmen on charges that the defamed 6 public officials and three admitted gamblers during an anti-gambling crusade was postponed in district court here today.

The arraignment was delayed because the newsmen appealed to the Louisiana Supreme court from a decision by Special Judge Bernard Cooke of New Orleans that he was qualified to try the case and assistant Attorney General M. E. Canigan was qualified to prosecute it.

The defendants claimed the case should be tried before one of the judges assigned to this district. Judge Cooke was sent here by the Supreme court to replace Judge Mark Pickett who is undergoing medical treatment.

Seven Killed in Wreck of Greyhound Bus

Oakland, Calif., Oct. 9 (AP)—A crowded Greyhound bus hit a loose block of concrete on a bridge approach early Sunday and plunged down 40 feet killing seven and injuring the other aboard.

The slab of concrete was torn from an abutment on the San Francisco Bay bridge approach by an other automobile accident three minutes earlier.

The bus blew a tire when it hit, careened across the roadway and smashed through a concrete and steel safety railing with a flash of sparks. It tumbled a moment, then toppled down to railway tracks 40 feet below.

"It made a loud crunching noise when it hit below," said John Shupard, Oakland Tribune truck driver.

A 14-year old bus passenger set his stop watch as the bus went over. It was 5: a.m. like every

Amy Seems to Be an Average American Girl—They All Like to Receive Free Catalogues

By SAUL PETT (For Hal Boyle) — It isn't easy for a man to expose his own daughter but I must, before she starts another great depression all by herself.

How many big corporations have been misled by Amy Pett, aged eight?

I have nightmares about promotion managers reporting increased consumer interest. I see boards of directors ordering new factories built to supply a demand that doesn't exist. I see staggering bond issues being floated for tremendous expansion programs. And finally, I shudder about acres of new buildings going dark, prices collapsing overnight, thousands of workers shuffling toward soup kitchens.

Before it's too late, let this be a warning to General Electric, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Pillsbury Mills and the other big corporations all over the land which have recently been contacted by Amy Pett.

Gentlemen, relax. She does not actually plan to buy a new car or install a remote-control wiring system, or buy an 11-cubic-foot refrigerator or equip a stainless steel kitchen or even buy a box of cake flour.

She just likes to get free catalogues. Anything free excites her. The mere word "free" will make her pause in mid-air during a rope jumping session, will send her leaping out of her "jet-propelled swivel chair" will make her late for a rendezvous with Hopalong Cassidy, will make her cancel plans for a rocket trip to the moon. Just hearing the word will even break up an extraordinary session of the "witches' society" just when a certain witch was about to be "discooped." A "discooped" witch is a witch who loses her boogie privileges.

Remember that the sabbath peace in our house was recently exploded by an almost hysterical scream from Amy's room. "Hey, Frances

Broadway Stage Actress Dies

South Norwalk, Conn., Oct. 29 (AP)—Actress Mady Christians, best known for her portrayal of mama in the Broadway hit, "I Remember Mama," died last night.

Death came three hours after she was admitted to Norwalk hospital following a cerebral hemorrhage suffered at New Canaan, Conn., where she had been staying recently.

Miss Christians, 49, and a native of Vienna, Austria, appeared in 15 Broadway shows and also in motion pictures.

Miss Christians had been divorced from a German journalist years ago. Her nearest surviving relative is a cousin, Mrs. Max Beckman of New York City.

The actress had a home at 425 East 72nd in Manhattan.

She had to leave George Brandt's touring company of "Black Chiffon" a month ago when she became ill. She was replaced by Sylvia Sydney.

Miss Christians' most recent Broadway performance was in August Strindberg's "The Father."

Hot Springs, Oct. 29 (AP)—A former FBI agent has been employed by the Arkansas Trust Co., here as vice president and auditor. The bank has been victimized of $100,000 by two recent employee embezzlements.

DOROTHY DIX

Early Dating

Dear Miss Dix: My oldest child is a daughter of 14, very mature, and to my knowledge, a girl highly respected by all who know her. Here is my question:

There is a boy about a year her senior who is very much interested in her. Of course, I realize they are young but my belief is that it's far better to allow them to chum together openly than to refuse them, which might cause a secret correspondence. What is your opinion?

He is a nice boy, and while I don't want them to go steady, I believe I am right in not drawing the line too close.

Answer: The greatest responsibility a parent has—and one which is too often neglected—is to help a child's development through the various phases of life. Admittedly the most difficult transition is into and through adolescence. Guiding a youngster through the difficult teens is an experience which usually leaves a parent limp and gasping. Questions arise of bewildering variety and complex situations become almost commonplace in their frequency.

Repression Might Be Harmful

For a 14-year-old girl to show interest in the opposite sex is part of the normal pattern and judiciously handled, it soon becomes part of her life. Such an interest occupies an abnormal part of the child's life when unwisely parents repress her natural instincts and make the boy-girl relationship an object of scorn and a reason for undue discipline.

So you are very wise, A. C. to allow your daughter to have boy friends. Dating, of course, should be kept well within bounds as to frequency, places attended and hours of homecoming. It is amazing to see how readily teen-age girls (and boys, too) who are given the privilege of dating, set standards for themselves in these matters. Very few high school students habitually date on school nights; their own attitude toward study, marks, school activities and the like put the tabu on indiscriminate dating during the week.

Keep a wary, though unobtrusive eye on your daughter's activities; win and keep her confidence. You are setting her well on the road to becoming a popular, poised and well-adjusted young adult.

Dear Miss Dix: For three years I went with Andy, and during that time we became engaged. We broke the engagement and I began going with Roy but have not been at all contented with him. I would so much like to go with Andy again. I know he has no other girl, and think he still likes me. How can I let him know my feelings?

Answer: Andy's pride is undoubtedly too much hurt for him to try to date you again, so the only alternative is for you to mend the breach. Could you plan an "accidental" meeting, perhaps at the home of some mutual friend? An opening might occur to give you the opportunity of showing how you feel. The most direct means is often the best: write and invite him to your house for an evening. If he refuses or ignores the invitation, at least you know what your position is.

Dear Miss Dix: Some time ago I met a man with whom I fell deeply in love. He has told me frankly that because he was divorced he is afraid of marriage and never intends to remarry. We see each other occasionally and I can't get him out of my mind no matter how hard I try. I am a widow and appreciate the meaning of loneliness. I hate to think of giving him up altogether, but I cannot keep up this relationship.

Answer: Divorce very often puts a man on the defensive, and fear of further matrimonial entanglements make him very wary. Even

Two weeks ago Caldwell said he'd let his Princeton boys throw him in Lake Carnegie if they beat Cornell. Less than an hour after Princeton's 53-15 victory was posted, the coach, clothes and all, was tossed into the lake.

"My son's not dry yet," Caldwell said. "By the way, what ever became of the 'top' formation?"

The two most successful plays in present day football, Princeton and Tennessee, are the play-offs of the old-fashioned single-wing. Princeton has won 17 in a row and top-ranked Tennessee 15.

All-American Dick Kautner had a great day for Princeton, with 15 completed passes out of 17 and a total of 350 overall yards, but we didn't outline a virtual unknown from Ohio State named Tony Currello. All Currello did was pass for four touchdowns and score two others in the Buckeyes' 47-21 victory over Iowa. He hit with 10 of 14 passes for 292 yards.

And he did a pretty good job of it. Currello, a 6-4, 190-pounder, scored four touchdowns in 44 minutes, including a 40-yard dash to the end zone in the fourth quarter.

With all this high-powered aerial pyrotechnics it's no wonder football scoring has reached basketball proportions. A cursory check of the college scores shows some 20 teams running up 50 or more points with almost as many more in the 40s.

Scoreless ties? None.

Montana State college completed its season Saturday and it didn't end too soon for the Rocky Mountain team.

The USC-TCU extra point battle highlighted an intercollegiate program which was marked by the Southwest dropping three games while winning none. Besides the TCU game, Santa Clara, which had lost four out of five, won 21-12 over Arkansas in the showdown after last week's Texas victory, and Villanova had one touchdown to many for Houston, 33-27.

Otherwise there were few upsets, however, and the top ten teams in the Associated Press poll had a perfect record save for the TCU game. Baylor, No. 7, third-ranked Georgia Tech, utilized a blocked punt for a touchdown, then added a safety for an 17 win over Vanderbilt, Illinois, No. 4, shut out Indiana, 21-0, on three touchdowns by Johnny Karrass, Maryland, No. 5, trounced Louisiana State, 27-0, and California, No. 9, whipped Oregon State, 51-14.

Other top ten winners were Tennessee, No. 1, Michigan State, No. 2, USC, No. 6, Princeton, No. 8 and Texas, No. 10.

Navy lost again, even if it was Navy day, when Penn punched out a 14-6 victory in the last quarter.

As the teams head into November and the traditional battles for conference honors, next Saturday's schedule shows three games matching teams undefeated in conference play.

Princeton, headed for its second straight Ivy league title and working on a string of 18 straight after triumphantly one-sided trouncing of Cornell, plays host to Brown.

The Bruins, who won their only league game against Yale, should be easy meat for Dick Kautner and his mates.

Michigan's defending Big 10 champions, nursing today after dropping two non-conference games, clash with Illinois in a game that may decide the eventual conference champion.

In the Southwest, TCU and Baylor meet in the game of the day there.

Comments on Saturday's Grid Play

By Will Grimsley

New York, Oct. 29 (AP) — Hanging Monday's football wish out to dry, and don't forget to leave room on the line for "Charley Caldwell's old gray towel."

Two weeks ago Caldwell said he'd let his Princeton boys throw him in Lake Carnegie if they beat Cornell. Less than an hour after Princeton's 53-15 victory was posted, the coach, clothes and all, was tossed into the lake.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, Oct. 29 (AP) — Look for baseball to create an "open" classification for leagues which aspire to become majors at this winter's meetings. The main difference between that and the present triple-A setup is that clubs will be allowed to withhold certain players.

It won't be just a SGP to the Pacific Coast league, but any circuit which can qualify on population and size of parks can move to this class. This action will apply changes and Shag Shaughnessy, major-league pitcher, will be allowed to lead the formation of two new major leagues.

Five of our cities are prospective major league to win while the Coast League has only two, "Shag" argues. "Take those and three from the American Association and you'd have a pretty good major league ball, too."

"Well," said Shaughnessy, "Five years ago I wouldn't have thought of operating a club in our league without a major league connection. Now I wouldn't be afraid to open up as an independent. We have just as good players as they have."

Dr. Herman B. Wells, Indian university president: "I'm not too much concerned about the great cry over the over-emphasis and commercialism of athletics. We want to de-emphasize failure and emphasize victory."

Monday Matinee

Clarence Hartwick, owner of America's most traveled fly, Siek's Image, has issued a challenge for a race between his speed queen and Kiss M. Kate, the No. 1 candidate for the 1951 best three-year-old nomination.

There's a chance for the match to be run before the Hialeah meeting. Bill Werber, former star Duke athlete and major league ball player and now head of the Duke General Alumni association, was chosen to crown Duke's homecoming queen last Saturday. Changes are he sold her some insurance during the ceremony, too.

Fay Taylor, a red-headed Irish girl who earns her speed records, hesitates to walk into a crowded newspaper office with all those men.

When Tom "Red Top" Davis fought at St. Nick's last week, his nickname wasn't even used in the publicity. Seems the brewery which sponsors the brewery didn't like the idea of a rival brand, which used a red-capped bottle.

Do's All, Brothers

Coincidence Dept: On Tuesday between VMI played Virginia, Tommy Dugan, first string VMI fullback, was kicked on the hip by a freshman linebacker and was sidelined for the rest of the week because of a pinched nerve.

In the next scrimmage on Wednesday, sub Jim O'Neill was kicked in the same spot by the same linebacker and pinched the same nerve.

They should teach that kid not to tackle with his feet.

When someone asked Ace Parker, Duke backfield coach, his opinion of the Tennessee team, Ace answered: "Bob Neyland has guys selling programs in the stadium who can play on our team."

Gosh, program-selling must be profitable.

Australia and New Zealand are distant Pacific powers whose interest in the Middle East is incidental. South Africa is located on the southeastern tip of the African continent, some 2,300 miles from Cairo. And France and Britain are primarily European nations.

The U. S. has joined in the project because of official concern for protecting the rich Middle East oil reserves and the strategic Suez canal.

But, as long as the Arab countries hold aloof from the command, it will not be possible for the West to plan an effective defense of the area against possible Communist attack.

Even worse, if the Arab countries actively oppose the command badly burned hands. He had compiled sufficient points in 1950 before his accident to gain the 10th position on the team.

The No. 2 "championship" course of the Pinehurst country club, never a soft touch has been even more difficult. Several tees have been pushed back and traps have been spread about to make it 7,007 yards of trouble.

Each nine has a par 36, with two par five holes, a pair of par threes and five par fours.

British Not Likely to Win Cup

Pinehurst, N. C., Oct. 27 (AP) — America's top professional golfers, who've maintained a stranglehold on the Ryder cup for 16 years, give Britain's best another of their biennial shots at the international trophy here next week end.

Ten-man squads of both countries will meet in a series of four Scotch foursomes and eight singles matches, each counting one point to decide where the prized cup, donated by wealthy British seed merchant Samuel A. Ryder, will reside for the next two years. The four-knives will be played Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Since play began in 1927 the United States has won six matches, the last four, while dropping only two. Two years ago the United States team had a close call, coming from behind with victories in six of the eight last day singles matches for a 7-5 winning margin at carborough, England.

Arthur Lacey, non-playing British captain, believes his team has a better chance of winning than visiting English team ever had. His reason is the team is "better balanced, stronger physically and better throughout than it has ever been."

Seven British players have previous cup experience. They are open champion Max Faulkner, Arthur Less, Charlie Ward, Ken Bonfield, Jimmy Adams, Dai Rees and Fred Daly. Newcomers are Harry Weetman, Jack Hargreaves and John Patton. Rees, Ward and Adams have the benefit of previous play at Pinehurst.

To Eliminate Shortage to Milk in State

Little Rock, Oct. 29—(AP)—A dairy expert said today that, while a milk shortage exists in Arkansas, the state within two years should be able to start producing as much as it uses.

Arkansas farmers can produce sufficient milk, said T. P. Head, agricultural extension service dairyman, if they will:

1. Remove milk cows from leased pastures, put them on grasses or small grain pastures and supplement pasture with high quality hay and silage.

2. Replace low producing cows with high producing cows.

Head explained that grazing feed-producing lespedeza causes a reduction in a cow's milk production.

Head said Arkansas has been importing milk from out of the state for several years in order to meet its needs.

He attributed the shortage of milk to an increase of 15 per cent in the nation's population since 1940; and 11 per cent decrease in the number of dairy cows and an increased demand stemming from higher individual incomes.

Several major cities in Arkansas have reported low supplies of milk. Ben P. Clift of the extension service said Jefferson county (One Wolf) has the lowest supply of milk in regard to demand.

Head said a pasteurization plant being built at Paragould can help supply a large area of eastern Arkansas.

"We're producing more milk now than in previous years," Clift said, "but Arkansas could still use more dairymen."

Head added that manufacturing milk is worth about 25 cents more per 100 pounds in Arkansas now than it was a year ago.

McClellan Wants Joint Budget Group

By GORDO BROWN

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Senator McClellan of Arkansas has high hopes for getting congressional approval early next year of his proposal for a joint congressional committee on the budget—an idea he believes will save the country many millions of dollars in appropriations.

Such a committee would have a full-time staff to study budgets and expenditures the year round and advise the appropriation subcommittees in detail on the many items in appropriation bills.

In the closing days of the recent session McClellan drew from majority Leader McFarland (D-Ariz.) the promise that he would try to get the bill up in the senate early next session.

Several senators, including Schoepfel (R-Kans.) Ferguson (R-Mich.) and Moody (D-Mich.), endorsed the McClellan proposal in talks in the senate.

McClellan said his bill isn't particularly dramatic but that he would consider it his most important contribution to good government. If the proposal is approved, McClellan, as author of the measure, likely would be a member, although probably not chairman, of the important committee.

Most of the Arkansas congressional delegation plan to spend the 10-week recess at home.

With the possible exception of Rep. Boyd Tackett, all the house members expect to seek re-election next year. When Tackett left Washington he still hadn't said whether he would make the race for governor or contest with Rep. Orren Harris for the house seat which one or the other will lose under the recent redistricting.

Rep. Brooks Hays is to accompany the house foreign affairs committee to Europe for about 10 days next month.

Senator and Mrs. McClellan now are making a leisurely jaunt home; Senator and Mrs. Fulbright, now home, expect to make a vacation trip later.

Approximately 4 to 8 per cent of normal people are left-handed.

Fair Enough

New York, Oct. 29—I have been renewing old acquaintance with my first favorite author, Horatio Alger, Jr., through some of his earliest and best works. They are "Fame and Fortune," "The Progress of Walter Conrad," and "Jed, The Poorhouse Boy."

This is revealing literature. The preface to "Fame and Fortune" tells us that there were in 1888 more than 12,000 friendless, vagrant children in New York alone and many others in other cities.

The author has sought to depict the inner life and represent the feelings and emotions of these little waifs. Alger tells us in this foreword, "He thus hopes to elicit a deeper and more widespread sympathy in the public mind as well as to exert a salutary influence upon the class of whom he is writing, by setting them inspiring examples of what energy, ambition and an honest purpose may achieve."

Richard Hunter, the hero of this story, is the Ragged Dick of a preceding tale. As Ragged Dick he had slept in vagons and packing boxes and had blacked gentlemen's boots in Chatham Square. Another figure in the Alger literature he'd run a racket. Equipped with a witch's broom this young man would offer to sweep the mud off the crossing in the path of gentlemen approaching, but only for a fee. If he didn't get a few pennies he would spray mud on their boots and trousers and the Ragged Dicks of the square would catch them for customers, altogether a graphic description of the condition of the city streets not so long ago.

Now Richard Hunter has rescued from a watery grave the small son of Mr. Rockwell, a rich merchant with a place of business on Pearl street and a home on Madison avenue. In gratitude, Mr. Rockwell gave him a job at $10 a week, a gold watch and chain, and a check for $1,000. Richard is a frank, modest, industrious character and by the end of chapter three we may leave him, confident that he will go over the top. He now lives in a respectable boarding house on Bluecker St., where he gets lodging and three meals a day for $5 a week. His first breakfast, a typical meal, consisted of breakfast, hot biscuits, potatoes and very good coffee.

There is an inscription in pencil on the flyleaf of "Try and Trust or The Story of a Bound Boy"—"Jos. M. Smith, from his S. S. teacher, Phineas Smith, Christmas, 1873."

Herbert Mason, 41, is left an orphan in Waverly, O., and his avaricious uncle in New York warily refuses to recommend him for "a situation" in the big city.

Then a cruel fate would have it that he should get into a collision with a mean and selfish farmer, named Abner Holden in a narrow stretch of road. Herbert was driving a horse and wagon over to Mill Village to get some corn ground for a neighbor and he encountered a light open buggy driven by a "very dark man with black hair and an unshaven beard of three days' growth which did not set off his irregular and repulsive features." Herbert gave over, but the man would not yield an inch, so his buggy was upset and damaged ten dollars' worth.

Now Abner Holden, for it was indeed he, goes to Captain Ross, the "cheerful man of the selectmen," who, all unknowing, delivered poor Herbert over to "the tender mercies of a man who had very little love for him."

I draw a veil over the wretched orphan's sufferings but leave you with the good news that all was well in the end.

The status and trials of Jed, the poorhouse boy, are similar to Herbert's and again we get by implication a glimpse of conditions which few of us ever heard of in our country. Adults and orphaned or abandoned children were legally committed to county poorhouses and the bondage of children in rural districts was a routine condition.

"When a boy becomes vain in his own achievements, and boastful, he is likely to alienate the respect and regard of his friends," the author wrote in the foreword to "Try and Trust." How true one may say. How true. But, "no such description will apply to Herbert Mason. It is hoped that the sympathies of the reader will attend him in his efforts to rise out of the poverty of his early days and in the fight against the man to whom he is in bondage."

"Phil the Fiddler, or The Young Street Musician" is not only an Alger classic but a graphic view of a forgotten feature of the past.

"Among the most interesting and picturesque classes of street children of New York are the young Italian musicians," he tells us.

"They wander about our streets with harps, violins or tambourines, playing wherever they can secure an audience. Few, even after several years, acquire even a passable knowledge of the English language. I was fortunate enough to make the acquaintance of two Italian gentlemen long resident in New York. Mr. A. F. Cerqua, superintendent of the Italian school at Five Points, and Mr. G. F. Secchi de Casale, editor of the well-known 'Eco D'Italia' from whom I obtained full and trustworthy information. A series of articles contributed by Mr. De Casale to his paper, on the Italian street children. I have found a great service.

"My readers will learn with surprise, probably of the inhuman treatment which they receive from the speculators who buy them from their parents in Italy. They are distinct from the hootblacks and newsboys who are found in Chatham Square and City Hall park. They are children of Italian residents of the poorer classes. From their ranks the Italian school draws its pupils. If the story of Phil the Fiddler shall excite an active sympathy in their behalf, the author will feel abundantly repaid for his efforts."

On fair consideration isn't it possible that Horatio Alger, Jr., instead of ridicule, deserves a status as a reformer similar to Dickens and Harriet Beecher Stowe?

Never Dreamed Tiny TUMS Work So Fast

"Just imagine me eating all my favorite foods with never a sign of acid indigestion, heartburn or gas," says Aunt May. "If Cousin Harry hadn't given me some Tums that time I visited him and had that bad case of sour stomach, I wouldn't believe anything could work so fast."

Tums do work in record time. No mixing, no waiting—no soda to cause acid rebound. Remember, keep Tums handy—eat like candy. See if you don't have lots more fun eating favorite foods and enjoying life.
